Dear Dr. Brennan:

I have your invitational letter of 21 June 1966 and the news of your study effort for ARPA. During your absence, Tom Schelling called to discuss the matter further, and he will probably have reported the results of our talk to you by now.

In short, I am most reluctant to participate in an open seminar while I am serving in an official capacity with this Agency, and Tom quite understood my reservations. He did suggest the possibility of an official review of your program within the context of DOD, and I said that I would be glad to be as helpful as possible under such circumstances.

Your project sounds like an interesting and important one, and I wish you good speed in its execution.

Sincerely,

STATINTL
